

Boukama Village

Essential Women's Journey 2011

The Village

Boukama is a small village with very few facilities. It is remote but is located in a breathtakingly beautiful setting surrounded by white sands and clear blue tropical waters.

Imagine a village so remote it only has access to electricity for one hour each day. During that hour, the community gather around the village's one television set for an hour's viewing. Of course no power means locals don't rely on computers or air conditioning so instead they busy themselves with more traditional activities.

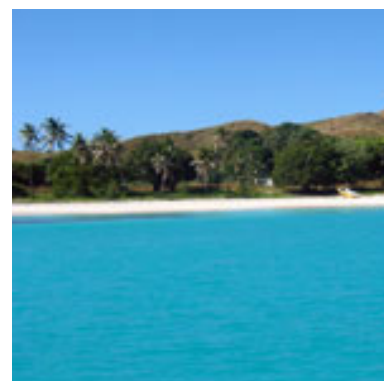

Join our group as we marvel the spirit of village life that's steeped in traditional values and culture. Experience a place where less is more and the people are happy and carefree. There is a sense of community and sharing unlike anything you would have experienced in Western society.

This is an opportunity like no other. Usually visitors only get a tourist's look at the village but it will be different when you're part of our group. This is as close as visitors get to an actual village stay as here you will be welcomed like family.

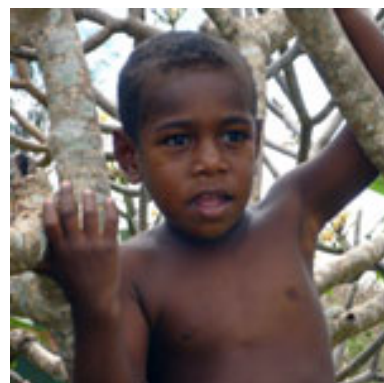

Visiting Boukama Village will be an experience full of delights and we promise, you will be moved, touched and inspired by these beautiful people.
